On the Fault Line: Managing Tensions and Divisions within Societies From Profile Books

Societies in all countries are split by major divisions—or "fault lines"—caused by differences in race, religion, ethnicity, wealth, class, or power. Some are plainly evident, whereas others are more concealed and can erupt with little warning.

In a world facing acute environmental, migration, and resource challenges that can only exacerbate differences, this is an essential guide to understanding a phenomenon that all countries must grapple with in the twenty-first century.

Jeffrey Herbst is the president of Colgate University, New York.

Terence McNamee's books include Century and Decade (Phaidon Press).

Greg Mills' most recent book is Why Africa is Poor (Penguin Books).

Editorial Review

Review

‘This may become the seminal work on a problem that threatens to destabilise important areas around the globe’ -Henry Kissinger

‘An imperative read as we strive to learn from our mistakes and the experiences of others.’ -Raila Odinga, Prime Minister of Kenya

‘As the impact of racial segregation and discrimination dissipates in South Africa, my country faces fresh challenges, including stark divisions in wealth and access to it. On the Fault Line is invaluable in guiding us through not only the management of such distinctions, but their eventual resolution.’ - F. W. de Klerk, Nobel Peace Laureate and former President of South Africa

‘This important book is an invaluable contribution to a debate which will shape politics and security in the 21st century.’ -Sir Kieran Prendergast, former Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs at the United Nations
